Three city girl students win national 'Learn To Lead' contest

National Campaign

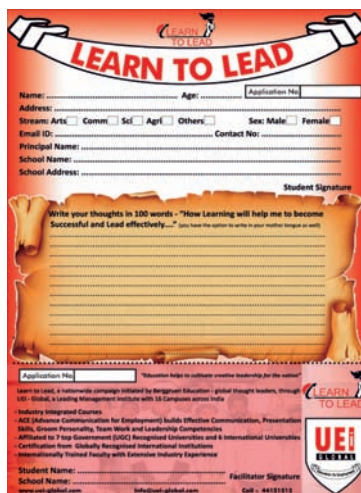

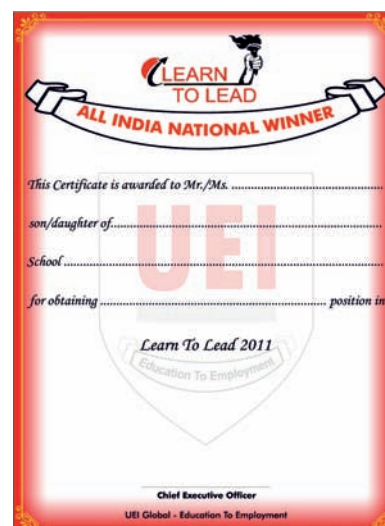

Learn To Lead

In our endeavour to support the social responsibility we sponsored the campaign “Learn to Lead” which in its first year of inception became a nationwide phenomenon. “Learn to Lead” was accepted wholeheartedly not only by students but schools, colleges, parents, state and central administration and a lot of NGO’s supported the cause and helped in generating a positive trend towards the professional courses and increasing the Gross Enrolment Ratio (GER). The primary aim of Learn to Lead was to motivate students to continue their higher education and provide them with an option to explore the benefits of experiential learning and skills based higher education in India.

The students through their schools participated in a competitive write-up, where they were expected to write down their understanding on “how learning acts as an important element to become an effective leader”. The thoughts reflected their perception as to how the learning helps in becoming an effective leader. The campaign demonstrated the significance of experiential learning and its application to become an effective global leader.
